

LAWS OF STATE TIE GOVERNOR'S HANDS; COLORADO IS TOP-HEAVY WITH STATUTES, SAYS FARRAR

Bar Has Followed Public Opinion. Attorney General Declares, Otherwise It Would Not Have Permitted Radical Legislation; Proposed Changes Not Approved

"The governor of Colorado has absolutely no control over his subordinate officers. His hands are tied. He has no power to enforce his wishes. All officers of the state, with the possible exception of the assessors, can do as they please, hinder and embarrass the governor and he can do nothing. Colorado must give its governor some real power."

These are the opinions of Attorney General Fred C. Farrar, expressed to members of the Colorado Bar association at the session yesterday at Broadway casino. Farrar's statements came in connection with his report as chairman of the law reform committee, in which he brought up several matters that resulted in a spirited debate on the floor of the convention and the final rejection of the report of the committee by a unanimous vote.

Farrar, in making the above statements, explained how easily the state executive could be hindered, and declared that during the recent conflict Auditor Kerghan refused to audit the bills of the militia and how the governor was hampered in his efforts to settle the strike.

Farrar, giving a remedy for conditions, suggested the short ballot, by which only the governor and lieutenant governor are elected, and the other officers appointed by the governor.

There was no discussion of this plan.

Too Many Amendments.

Remedies for Colorado's legislative executive branches were probably the most important of the discussions yesterday afternoon's meeting. Colorado is top-heavy with bureaus, departments and commissions, and the state constitution has so many amendments and so much dead timber that constitutional convention is needed and needed immediately, according to Farrar.

"One cannot walk through the corridors of the capitol and see the signs of the bureaus, etc. (Without laughing

at the agencies created in our folly," said Thomas J. O'Donnell, prominent attorney of Denver. O'Donnell was especially opposed to adding more laws to "burden the state officers," stating: "We've got too much law; we can't enforce it."

O'Donnell also suggested that the initiative be gotten rid of, but his suggestion was not well taken.

Attorney Ben C. Hilliard of Denver

came to the defense of the initiative.

The initiative is for the good of all

if the people's weapon," he said.

The people will not let go of it, and if this bar association gets in its way

it will surely be run over," Hilliard also attacked the plan proposed to give the governor more chances in legislative activity. The governor is not legislative power, he said. "The bar has followed public opinion and has not let it," said Farrar, in concluding his report. "If it had been safer, it would not have permitted

so much radical legislation."

Two Lines of Action.

The question came up following the report of the law reform committee, of which Farrar is chairman. The committee suggested two lines of action, but the plans were so radical that upon motion of O'Donnell, the report was laid on the table for a year, which means the defeat of the plans proposed. Farrar himself opposed the measures to some extent. Farrar's suggestions were as follows:

"First—The creation by a bill in the legislature of a state legislative reference and bill-drafting department, such as is in effect in Wisconsin and several other states, and the turning over of the state library, which, he explained, is at the present time worth little to anybody for this purpose.

Second—An amendment to the state constitution providing a division of the sessions of the state legislature.

This proposed that the legislature not meet until the first Wednesday in March, when the governor will be acquainted with his office and with party politics. It also provided that the session be divided into as many sessions of 30 days each as are needed.

After the first session only appropriation bills can be considered.

The legislative reference and bill-drafting department was the most interesting of the two suggestions. It is suggested largely as a clearing house for legislation. The bill reads as follows:

"Section 1. There is hereby created a legislative reference and bill-drafting department, which shall be in charge of some competent person, learned in the law, who shall be appointed by the governor for a term of six years and until his successor shall be appointed and qualified, and shall be known as the superintendent of the legislative reference and bill-drafting department." The superintendent shall receive a salary of $2,000 per annum, and shall be entitled to the assistance of a stenographer when needed, who shall receive a salary of $100 per month for time actually employed.

"Section 2. The superintendent of the legislative reference and bill-drafting department shall investigate and give information to the members of the legislature, the officials of the state, counties and municipalities, and the public in general on all legislative matters.

ANTITRUST LEGISLATION NOW PENDING IS

TARGET OF ATTACK FROM CHARLES NAGEL

Declares Present Laws Should Be Simplified to Harmonize With Economic Trend

Extracts From Hon. Charles Nagel's Address

We are in a state of statutory law worship. We pin our faith to the letter of the law, forgetting the spirit of the law.

Taft's fatal error was that he tried to be a constitutional president, and followed out the letter of the law.

The very people who complain of the law's technicalities and delays are more especially responsible for the condition.

Laws which are impatiently enacted one day are impatiently defied the next.

The initiative, referendum and recall, in the light of experience, have suffered abatement.

The direct primary . . . has increased the opportunities and decreased the responsibilities of the political boss.

It cannot be denied that we are coming to a greater dependence upon executive power.

It would be far better to simplify our antitrust laws than to add to them further provisions of doubtful wisdom.

Declaring the "rain of law" is the most threatening condition that involves the domestic development and relations with foreign countries of the United States, and that the legislature have forgotten that the vitality of the law is derived from the people, the Hon.

Charles Nagel of St. Louis, secretary of commerce and labor under the Taft administration, last night attacked the antitrust legislation now pending before congress on the grounds that the present laws should be simplified in order to be brought into harmony with the economic trend of the times. Mr.

Nagel addressed the Colorado Bar association at the Antlers on "The Growth of Our Law."

"Until the federal government protection as well as denounces commercial organizations, we will see a continuance of this flood of state legislation," he said, "and will pay the price of so conflicting and incongruous a state system."

Mr. Nagel criticized the failure of the American people to take proper advantage of the initiative, referendum, recall and direct primary, and stated that these laws had not come up to the expectations of their most enthusiastic admirers.

"We are in a state of chronic unrest and are piling statute upon statute to effect a cure," he said.

Depending on Executive Power.

"It cannot be denied that we are coming to a greater dependence upon executive power. Apparently this trend is in conflict with the general movement. . . . One of the unmistakeable signs of a . . . machine and

PRESENT SCHOOL SYSTEM WRONG, SAYS DR. FRANCIS

TEACHERS CAUSE MUCH IMMORALITY

National Education Association Closes Convention in St. Paul

ST. PAUL, July 10.—A somewhat business session of the National Education association was suddenly enlivened today when Dr. J. H. Francis, superintendent of schools of Los Angeles, Cal., vigorously attacked the present school system, denouncing the inefficiency of the average teacher, and characterized as such wreckers "certain powerful interests that are blocking all forms of educational progress."

Unfavorable criticism of his "sensationalism" was uttered by many leading educators, but the storm of applause which interrupted him at every sentence was indicative of the general attitude of the delegates.

Convention Closes.

The annual convention closed tonight after a brief session devoted to a discussion of the needs of the public school. The next board of directors will meet tomorrow and approve the selection of Oakland, Cal., as the meeting place next year. The convention will be held August 15 to 23.

"Our public schools of today," Dr.

Francis said, "are unmanageably places, in which we are because it is the custom, and some of us become good citizens in spite of them."

"The purpose of education is to make us scholarly enough so that we may separate ourselves from the common herd. Teachers who train a child to believe that he cannot be responsible unless he is a professional man are a menace to society."

Schools Are Wrong.

"Schools are all wrong, because they give the credit to the captains of things, not to the stokers. When the teaching force is allowed to make its own judgments, and stand on these judgments, we will have different boys and girls."

"We are dragging out the souls of children."

FEDERALS ARE HOLDING OUT AT GUAYMAS

May Evacuate City at Any Moment, Wires General Alvarado

VILLA STILL IS AT TORREON

Guadalajara Success Is Great Moral Victory for the Rebel Cause

EL PASO, Tex., July 10.—Guaymas has not been evacuated, but soon will be, said a telegram received tonight from Gen. Salvador Alvarado, commander of the constitutional forces invading the west coast port. Alvarado stated in an official report to General Carranza that the Fifteenth battalion, with much artillery, had surrendered to his troops and that the foreign colony of Guaymas was beginning negotiations for the surrender of the remainder of the garrison acting as the unofficial representative of Gen. Joaquin Terrell, the federal commander. It was stated that the federals were preparing to leave on transports for some more southern coast points. General Alvarado requested General Carranza to authorize him regarding what quarter should be given the enemy.

Garrison Ready to Flee.

It was considered that the recent Victory of Obregon's troops in taking Guadalajara had its effect on the Guaymas garrison. It was predicted by revolutionaries agents here tonight that the fall of Guadalajara also would have a great moral effect on officials in Mexico City. Guadalajara, within a few hours' railroad run of the national capital, is the second largest city in Mexico, and contains the residences of many prominent Mexicans of the capital. It previously has been unaffected by revolutionary movements.

Deep-seated assurances from both Villa and Carranza supporters here that Villa's position against Huerta, the campaign against Huerta, the

of his army had begun preparations for a southern movement, so far as was known here tonight, it was estimated that 12,000 of his 18,000 soldiers remained quartered in the country districts of southern Chihuahua, 500 miles from the war zone south of Aguas

Calientes.

Villa Still in Torreon.

General Villa himself was still in Torreon tonight but will leave tomorrow for Chihuahua City. This information was given tonight by

Lazaro de la Garza, commercial agent for Villa in Torreon, after a telephone conference with the northern leader.

It was estimated that two weeks

must elapse before Villa's entire army

could be transported from Chihuahua to Aguas Calientes, where the northern limit of Huerta territory extends.

Villa's civil officials on the border

continued to assert that the sole reason for quartering his command so far from the zone of operations was to secure sufficient food for his soldiers and good forage for the horses.

ANARCHISTS TO CALL

OFF DEMONSTRATION

Obey Mandate of City Authorities That No Public Funeral Be Held

NEW YORK, July 10.—No attempt

will be made by anarchists tomorrow to hold the proposed funeral parade in honor of the men who were killed in the bomb explosion last Saturday. This was announced by Alexander Berkman last today. Earlier the anarchists had declared their intention of holding the parade in defiance of orders by the mayor and police commissioner and a clash between the police and the parade seemed inevitable.

The Antimilitarist league and the Mother Earth association, Berkman

said, had decided to call off the parade rather than antagonize the police.

There would be a demonstration at Union square, he said, but the ashes of Arthur Carson, Charles Berg and Carl Hansen would not be present.

The bodies of the three men were cremated on Wednesday and it had been planned to carry the ashes in an urn to Union square, where eulogies were

SUNDAY ANSWERS 'FOOL EXCUSES' PEOPLE MAKE IN REFUSAL TO ACCEPT SALVATION

Would Rather Walk to Heaven Over a Stony Road Than Ride to Hell in a Chariot

The Rev. William A. Sunday preached at the tabernacle last night taking for his sermon subject "Excuses," from John 8:12. "And ye will not come to me that ye might have life," he said.

"I think of all the words that ever fell from the lips of Jesus of which we have record, to my mind these are among the saddest.

"God came to you and offered salvation, and you spurned it; and after you have run the earthly career and gone into your grave, then you will just think over your life and remember the things that kept you from taking your stand for Christ, and you will think what a fool you were to do it.

"Nobody is lost because he needs to be lost, because the salvation of Jesus Christ covers all the sins of all the people. He tasted death for every man.

"Man is not lost because of any purpose or decree on the part of God.

"We all deserve hell if we get our just deserts; for salvation does not come as a reward of merit, but because of God's grace. It is made perfect in weakness. Don't look at your weakness, but at the Savior that you have. Well, then, why don't you come to Christ?

Kept Away From Sin.

Well, I hope tonight, with the help of God, to answer a few fool excuses people offer. I don't know whether God himself would answer them or of would try, but I will try to answer a few of them.

In the first place, because of sin. Sin has kept multitudes away from Christ. Moody preached one night and pictured sin in all its black repulsiveness, and when he gave the invitation, a man came forward and a worker went to him and said:

"Will you give Mr. Moody your hand?"

"No, I won't. I'm held in the meshes of an awful sin, and as a result of indulgence in it, I make money out of it, and I want Mr. Moody by the hand, and I won't give it to him."

"And he turned his back on Jesus Christ. Sin is keeping many a man from Jesus Christ.

"With others it is the love of money. Many know that if they become a Christian they would lose money by the cash, and there are certain things in your business that you would have to give up if you became a Christian and took your stand for Jesus Christ. Money, many will not sacrifice the crooked business or the crooked price of an honest business.

There is many a man chooses a large income and thus Jesus Christ doesn't want him. Many would have to give up his situation.

"Suppose that you get $10,000 a year and live for 20 years, that would be $200,000, and you would sell your soul to the devil for $200,000.

"I'll remind you that you are not worth that. You would be offended, yet you sell your soul for less than that."

"That is what is the matter with the whiskey business. I know of brewers who have taken their stand for Jesus Christ, and they have gone to work only to be discharged because they chose to be decent. Better men in the town have given them jobs that are paying them far better salaries.

Business Dishonesty.

I will tell you, I would rather walk to heaven over a stony road than ride to hell on dirty money.

Say, God will damn the hottest money maker that will make a few dollars to sell a few dirty goods from his shelve, in order to put money in his till. He will damn you, whoever you are.

There is many a man grown rich by over-reckoning his neighbor. He robs the widow and the orphan. He does it by legal means, he is too clever to get caught in the meshes of the law. He lives in a magnificent home, and he rolls down the street in a beautiful equipage, and some old fellow with a child stands on the street and says:

"There goes Mr. So-and-So! And his name is known and honored, and it's only necessary to attach his name to any product to make it sell."

"Bye and bye he dies and there is an upsur and a fume, and a pow-wow over his old career at the fact, and they put a statue on him as long as it takes to the back door, and a couple to his wife and a bunch of the club, and the lodge, and all the other things he was a member of, stating where he was, and where he resided, etc., while the bones of his victims lie rotting under in the potter's field."

Tell me that there is no hell for a scoundrel like that?

Hard to Save Whiskey.

Man will live with no thought about God in business, home, society or the way they live.

I had rather undertake to save 10 drunkards than one old financial shark. It would be a little.

A friend of mine came back to his town in Ohio, and there was a rich man there who was very ill, and he went to relieve those that were watching by his bedside, and he sat talking with him one night, and the death-dew was on his brow, and the death-rattle in his throat. It was 2 o'clock in the morning, and the sick man rolled over and said:

"Say, do you know a place where I can invest my money at 6 per cent first mortgage? I am only getting 3 with the money in the bank."

There was that old stinker only four hours from the here, and instead of getting ready to meet God he was wondering where he could get 6 per cent for his money.

Some man says: "You give me present possession; I don't care anything about future hope."

Supposing tonight that you were worth $1,000,000 and had a beautiful home, and were surrounded with a retinue of servants, but knew that tomorrow morning when the sun arose, and the banks opened, and the courts convened, that you would be proved to be a defaulter and an embezzler and spend the rest of your days in the penitentiary.

Or suppose that tonight you are a noble and a worthy Willie, and haven't the price of a sinker, and have to crawl into a hog lot or a straw stack to sleep, but you know that tomorrow when the sun rises, and the banks open, and the courts convene, that you would be proved to be a defaulter and an embezzler and spend the rest of your days in the penitentiary.

to a girl like that. But you can't tell what a fellow would do. But, supposing that, for the argument, he was. He said to her: "Look here, everybody is making fun of you—and your old brass jewelry. Give it up. Look here: 'I love you' and if anything is needed to demonstrate that, fact, it is that I have promised to marry you. But if it comes to giving up the jewelry for you, I will just have to give you up."

Gives Her Real Jewels.

But he comes back the next night, and has a brown leather box, and he pulls the spring and pulls out a string of real pearls, and says: "Throw your old dough beads away, and I will give you the real thing."

"And he takes up a diamond ring, and it is a beautiful one, with a 'flint' setting, and he says: 'You must give up that old brass ring, and he says: 'Take those old brass rings off and put these solitaires on.'"

"Would it be hard for her to give up glasses to get diamonds? No, it would be easy."

Like the young girl who came to Dr. John Hall and said: "I want to join the church." He said: "It is one thing to join the church and another to be a Christian; but, of course, you will have to give up certain things."

"What do you mean?" If you mean that, in order to be a Christian, I have to give up dancing, I will not do it."

"And you will if God wants you to?" And she said: "Dr. Hall, if it comes to choosing between Jesus Christ and the dance, I have no hesitancy in telling you that I will choose the dance, and the poor fool made the choice and went out into the world."

You say: "Look here, is there nothing to give up if a man becomes a Christian?"

In Iowa a young fellow was praying, and could not get any light, and finally he threw down some loaded dice and said: "Now, I can give you my hand."

Another fellow came forward and struggled and didn't get any light, and pretty soon he ran his hands down into the pockets of his pantaloons and pulled out a pink flask of whisky and said: "Now, I can give."

Then, if it is hard for you to give up the devil to get Jesus Christ, if you become a Christian, think of what you get.

Sensible Standpoint.

Then look at religion from a sensible standpoint. For no good thing will be withheld from them that walk uprightly.

Whatever may be your views about the inspiration of the Bible, if I ever found a verse that was specially written for some men in Colorado Springs, it is this one:

"The fear of man bringeth a snare." And when the invitation is given, multitudes know that they ought to be Christians, but they get cold feet right there, and sit slumped to the seat, and all heaven could not induce them to take a stand for Jesus. They are afraid that somebody will laugh. They are afraid that some member of the lodge would laugh at them, or that some old whisky snob will give you the horse-laugh.

I had rather be brave and decent, and brave enough to walk on the side of Jesus Christ and live for him, and let some old devil live in Colorado Springs, than to be a coward and sit slumped to the seat, and all heaven could not induce them to take a stand for Jesus. They are afraid that somebody will laugh. They are afraid that some member of the lodge would laugh at them, or that some old whisky snob will give you the horse-laugh.

You know that on the first day of April all the fools in America will try to fool all the other fools in lots of fool ways.

An old farmer went into a bank and drew a wallet of money and stuffed it down in his pocket, and was going along looking up at the sky, and with his little bird-tail whiskers sticking up.

After a while, along came some fools out for a blowout, and they saw the pocketbook lying on the sidewalk, and they had picked up some things and had been about to throw them away, but they were afraid to try again. They stood there staring each other, when the old farmer steamed up and grabbed the pocketbook and counted the money and said: "April fool, you darned fools, you!"

So you see a fellow come down and give me his hand. Is he the fool or are you?

Takes Grit and Manhood.

Will you? No. Then you are a fool. A fool is a fellow that has not decency enough to do it. The fear of man bringeth a snare.

There are many among the chief rulers also many believed on him, but they did not confess him lest they should be put out of the synagogue, for they loved the glory of men more than the glory of God.

Let me tell you this is a God-hating, a Bible-hating, and a Christ-hating world, and it takes grit and manhood to live for Jesus. It does not take any manhood to live for the devil, but every man who has a strong influence should be a stand for Christ. For the sake of your influence will you?

His daughter said: "Papa, you go and I will sit here."

He said to me: "Mr. Sunday, if you think that my presence on the platform will honor my Savior, and induce anybody to accept him as their Savior, I will be glad to sacrifice my personal inclinations and go, and one of the proudest moments of my life was when I walked down the aisle with President Harrison. The vast audience awaited to its feet and burst into cheers and sang: 'My Country, 'Tis of Thee.'"

How do you feel, you little two-by-four whisky-snobbed fellows who can't earn $10 a week and turn up your nose at religion?

It is beneath you to be a Christian. It would lower your manhood.

You are a fool. You will not come unto me that ye might have life.

You come, and others will follow.

God's Footprints Plain.

But I know, I know there is a devil in the footprints in the jail, and the penitentiary, among the highway robbers, and the scum and offscum of a God. I see his footprints in Harry Combs and pure lives, and church and college school. I know that there is a God and a devil in Colorado Springs.

Jesus will save you from the power of the devil in this world, and from damnation in the world to come, and the right to accept for the sake of your influence.

Every man and woman has an influence, and the man or the woman who has the greatest influence against Christianity is not the fellow in the way before, and I will not say it. It is the man or woman morally in this town who is not a Christian.

There was a great revival on Yale college many years ago. God bless your name, the fellow in the way before, and I will not say it. It is the man or woman morally in this town who is not a Christian.

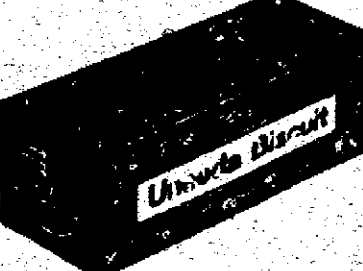

Think of having a revival in that University of Chicago or Harvard. I would as soon think of having a revival in hell, and that would be going back to the days of the great revival at our colleges and universities, but it is all a thing of the past.

If I wanted to make an infidel of my child, I'd send her to the University of Chicago or some other school where the devil shut the Bible out of the curriculum.

They were having a revival at Yale

GIFT OF GOLD FOR MISS MILLER; GIRLS WARN HER TO LOOK OUT FOR THIEVES

As she rushed down an aisle at the tabernacle during the song service last evening, Miss Frances E. Miller was stopped by a crowd of business women, lifted upon a seat in full view of the crowd which almost filled the building, and thanked for the service. She has rendered the downtown girls following the little speech, the girls presented Miss Miller with $12.50 in gold, with instructions to "buy something" with it so thieves can't get the cash.

Because of lack of time and the uncomfortable position in which she found herself, Miss Miller begged to be excused from making a speech of thanks. She did thank the girls with much feeling, however, and wished them the greatest success in the work which has been so well started.

The business women had planned a similar stunt for Mrs. William Asher, but Mrs. Asher was unable to attend the meeting. Her gift was sent to her by Miss Miller.

Tabernacle Brings $1,675 at Auction

William Honeyman, a local contractor, purchased the Cascade avenue tabernacle at auction yesterday afternoon for $1,675. Several bidders were present at the sale to make offers. Other small articles, such as step ladders, wheelbarrows, rakes, etc., were sold, bringing $37.45 and making the total amount realized at the auction $1,712.45.

The Rev. S. E. Brewster, chairman of the finance committee, said last night that the sum will cover all remaining debts for the campaign. Billy Sunday was very much pleased with the result of the sale. Colonel Dobb donated his services as auctioneer.

Souvenir Hunters on Billy Sunday's Trail

Billy Sunday receives scores of peculiar letters, the most peculiar probably being letters asking for mementoes. And it has remained for Colorado Springs people to ask for the most unique of all souvenirs.

Yesterday's mail Secretary B. D. Ackley found a request for a handkerchief that had been carried by the evangelist while on the platform. Another, however, went this one better. She asked that Sunday go into the back yard, pick up any kind of a stone and send it to her. She wanted to have it placed in a granite building built in her new home, she said, so that she might sit in front of it on cold winter nights and think of the great good being done by the evangelist.

Another letter requested Sunday to comment from the platform on the smallness of those people who take advantage of the crowded condition of street cars and jump off the car at Platte avenue without paying their fares. It is almost impossible for the conductors to collect all fares before Platte is reached, the letter pointed out, and many take advantage of this condition. If Sunday would comment on it, his remarks would have great force upon those people who thus steal the ride, the letter pointed out. The communication was anonymous.

Sunday was much amused at the requests for the stone and handkerchief. He quite frequently receives requests for photographs, but a stone is something new. He probably will accede to the desires of the woman.

Shoots Man Who Tries to Elope With Daughter

TRINIDAD, July 10. Pedro Valdez, a ranch hand, was shot and seriously wounded today at Oñda Plaza, four miles east of this city, by Vincenzo Martourano, a truck farmer, and is at the hospital here, with a bullet wound in the left side. Martourano is in the county jail.

Martourano says he shot Valdez because he suspected him of plotting to elope with his daughter, Rosaria, 22, who was advancing along the garden path to meet Valdez when the shot was fired, and that Valdez had, it is stated in coming after he had been repeatedly warned to stay away.

MRS. ASHER INJURED

Mrs. William Asher slipped and fell on the stairs at the Sunday home yesterday morning, sustaining a badly sprained ankle. Dr. O. R. Gillett ordered her to remain at home, and she canceled all meetings for the day.

Among the 1,500 inhabitants of the Joliet (Ill.) prison there is not one printer.

BILLY SUNDAY SCORES EXCUSES OF THOSE WHO WILL NOT BECOME REAL CHRISTIANS

will not come unto me that ye might have life," John 8:12.

Predestination Certainly.

"Predestination—sure, I believe it," he said after his opening remarks. "You predestine yourself to hell or heaven. God gives everyone an opportunity to accept the gospel, every one has a chance for salvation. He takes on and rejects the other, and so predestines his future life."

The evangelist was bothered by noise more last evening than almost any other time. And he had requested that the audience do everything possible to help him because of his hoarseness.

The sermon was an argument, the references for proof being Biblical. Half-donors or so excuses for not becoming a Christian were taken up and discussed at some length and finally overwhelmed by the forceful arguments of the evangelist. He had little use for the average person who makes excuses, though he does respect an honest disbeliever. Perhaps Jesus would not have answered some of the arguments he answered, he said, but he wanted to give everybody a chance, so if an honest man were putting forth one of the excuses discussed he could be made to see how flimsy it really was.

"Sin is one of the big excuses, or rather reasons," Sunday said. "People know they need Jesus Christ, but they keep away from him because they know they will have to forsake some sin which happens to be profitable and pleasurable to them. Some of the sins down there now are: rejecting Christ because you won't forsake dancing."

Money an Excuse.

"Love of money keeps many away. You're not to give up crooked profits when you accept Christ. Why, I'd give up a good-paying situation before I'd go to the devil." He illustrated by telling a story of a whiskey salesman who didn't want to quit his business because his family would be compelled to drop a notch or two in manner of living because of reduced income. Then he attacked the merchant who forces his clerks to lie. "God will damn in the hottest part of hell the merchant who makes his clerks lie to sell his goods," he shouted with all his power.

Love of pleasure was another reason. "People today think pleasure is in the booze, playing cards, keeping some woman on the side and breaking their wives' hearts, gadding around to dances," he said scolding. "They don't know what pleasure is. 'Poor Idiots!'"

Fear of man was another reason. Sunday said he had found a verse in the Bible which he believes was written with Colorado Springs in mind. "The fear of man bringeth a snare," he quoted.

"I've never yet been in a town where the leaders in things political and social and financial, were so deadly afraid to publicly take their stand for Jesus Christ," he declared. "Why, the biggest cowards that ever lived are right here in Colorado Springs. I despise a religious coward—have no use for mutts like that." He added with deep feeling, and drew his laugh with, "You need to pray for two good legs; not a brain."

He characterizedly summed up the matter: "I'd rather have a two-legged devil here in Colorado Springs sneer at me now than to have the devil of hell sneering at me after while."

Can get away from the sneers here, but I'll have to stand there in hell throughout eternity."

For those who say, "I'm too busy," Sunday said he would point out the truth in such a way that if they were honest they would have to accept them or be "excepted" as a cipher, nothing, a mere nonentity."

Not Men Just Mutts.

"The trouble with you people," he declared, "is that you won't give him an opportunity to convince you. You're not men—you're mutts."

He referred again to those who say they will accept Christ in the church. "You will admit, won't you, that I don't care if I get questioned with a smile. 'If there is anything I can do to be a past master at it is a spiritual hypocrite. That's my specialty."

Waiting for friends to join the church and accept Christ was another reason assailed, as was "haven't the feeling," "You want to get right before you die," "You want the evangelist to tell you, 'right' is impossible and proving with his pitcher of water, always placed under the pulpit handy for any emergency."

"You've got lumbago; I tell you, I take a certain patent medicine that cures me of lumbago; you ask what it cost; I say $1—of course, all patent medicines cost $1—you send for a bottle of it; I leave and return the next day; ask you whether it helped you; say you didn't take it; that you just got it and thought that enough. O course, if you don't take it, it won't do you any good. If you don't do as the Bible says, you won't be helped."

Sunday closed his sermon with a concluding story of President Harrison, who once offered to sit on the platform at a revival being conducted by Dr. Chapman and Mr. Sunday. The preacher thought his presence would help anyone else. After telling the story Sunday said:

"Now, how do you feel, you little two-by-four whisky fellows, who can't earn $10 a week and turn up your nose at religion?"

Just as he extended his invitation, a heavy roll of thunder detracted the attention of the audience. An expression of dismay crossed Sunday's face looked closely by one of disappointment.

"Pretty hard with that thunder," he said, turning to Mrs. Sunday. "In 15 minutes too late; can't do much with 'em against that."

But Sunday was mistaken. The response was far more spontaneous than for some time and within a very few minutes a hundred penitents had poured down the aisles. The evangelist called for secretaries almost from the start, and closed the after-service within five minutes. One hundred and ten responded to his invitation.

NEW YORK MUNICIPAL CAR

From the Electric Railway Journal.

The new car which the New York Municipal Railway corporation has developed for rapid transit subway elevated service is a remarkable combination of large dimensions with low weight, modest motor equipment, schedules, and enormous carrying capacity. The important features of the car certainly have been utilized to the best advantage. Obviously end doors alone were not the question in a car of this size. The first thought would be to add a center door, but in this instance three pairs of double side doors are used, and there are located so as to divide the amount of passenger change as evenly as possible. Ever during the hours of light traffic passenger movement will be faster than in other rapid-transit cars

Nine Balloons Leave St. Louis

ST. LOUIS, July 10.—The balloon "Goodbye," piloted by Capt. R. A. D. Preston of Alton, Ill., won the coveted place in the drawing today for starting position in the national elimination balloon race that will start from here tomorrow.

This balloon will start last, and therefore will be considered as having an advantage in the race because of its greater lifting power of hydrogen which will be under the heating rays of the sun for a longer time before the ascent than will the gas in the balloons that start earlier.

The order in which the balloons will start and their pilots and aids follow:

1. Balloon "Hoosier," pilot Warren Rager, Brookville, O.; aide, Herbert Busor, his son.
2. Balloon "America III," pilot, Jerome Kinneburg, New York; aid, Clarence Gwynne, Philadelphia.
3. Balloon "San Francisco, 1915," pilot, E. S. Cole, St. Louis; aid, R. L. Emerson, Springfield, Mo.
4. Balloon "Aide Sam," pilot, P. J. McElhinne, St. Louis; aide, William Trefts, St. Louis.
5. Balloon "Miss Sofia," pilot, Wilbur Assmann, St. Louis; no aide.

THE LAST SHRIEK

ONE Querido Moheno, former minister of commerce and labor of Mexico, is coming to the United States to show that the Progressive party has framed a "secret platform" for the disruption of the republic and the ultimate acquisition by this country of all of the land between the Rio Grande and Panama. He also adds that President Wilson and other political leaders of both the Democratic and Republican parties "have subscribed to this iniquitous conspiracy."

The distinguished Mexican has undertaken a big contract to prove such charges. He claims to have letters to show that Colonel Roosevelt is cognizant of the understanding but until more evidence is produced he will not be taken seriously by any thinking person. His words sound like the last shriek before the retreat. Indeed, he admitted in an interview at Vera Cruz yesterday as he was about to sail, that the present revolution would be successful in overthrowing Huerta, although he wisely added that other outbreaks would follow.

The interview was significant in the fact that he said he would return to Mexico whether peace was restored or not and would play his part in an effort to restore normal conditions. It was suggested by his interviewer that he might become a candidate for the presidency. He refused to acknowledge any such plan, but prominent Mexicans on board the ship on which he sailed said that there was no doubt that he would make the race if the opportunity should arise.

Moheno is evidently a good politician. He is going to tell the hated Yankees to their faces what the Mexicans think of them, and then return to the fatherland to receive his pay at the public crib. In this he is not unlike party leaders of other countries.

His reference to possible trouble after the overthrow of the Huerta regime, however, is only what thoughtful Americans have expected would follow. Zapata will probably insist on the surrender of the lands in the southern district to his followers, regardless of policies of the new administration. This is sure to cause further fighting as the territory in question is largely owned by many of the wealthiest and most prominent men in Mexico. Other sub-chiefs, with grievances fancied or real, will continue their warfare until forced to surrender.

Moheno's campaign of education, as he calls his coming visit to this country, will be awaited with interest, but it is probable that political conditions in Mexico will move with such rapidity in the next few weeks that Americans will give but little heed to his lament.

PERSONAL INSOLVENCY

ONE of the most important conventions at the San Francisco exposition will be one that the average person has thought little about. It is the proposed congress of thrift which S. W. Straus of New York is arranging for as president of the American Society of Thrift. The organization aims to promote individual as well as national economy. It would have us go back to first principles to remedy many of the economic evils of the age.

The formation of such a society has come none too early. Wasteful extravagance and the attempt to live far beyond the natural limitations of incomes have brought countless thousands of people to personal insolvency.

Ask any man of large wealth the secret of his fortune and he will say that it was based on saving. A school teacher who was visiting Mr. Rockefeller some time ago told him that he should be very happy to have so many homes and horses and automobiles and servants. He only replied, "Save your pennies." He did not mean that mere saving would give persons of small incomes all of these things, but that the saving would provide funds on which to start the building of a fortune. To this advice the oil magnate has added, "when you get six cents, spend one and save a nickel."

No amount of legislation will make a millionaire out of a spendthrift. The opportunities for saving are as great today as they ever were. The trouble is the cost of high living rather than the high cost of living. The less expensive cuts of meat are fully as nutritious as the high-priced ones, yet the butcher will say that the so-called choice steaks and roasts are bought largely by persons of limited means. The $75 and $100 clerks ride to work nowadays in automobiles while their employers walk or use the street cars. We all too often learn the latest fashions from shop girls and chambermaids because the well-to-do wait for the mark-down sales.

No young man or woman should be ashamed to save money. It is the only way a competency can be assured for old age. Now and then a fortune is made on the turn of the wheel, but the odds are overwhelmingly against the player. Where one wins the masses lose.

The failure of some great financial institution shocks the country. It paralyzes business and causes financial ruin often of other institutions, but statistics show a worse condition among the people at large. Almost sixty per cent. of the inhabitants of the country die penniless. The problem of these financial bankrupts is far more serious. Wise legislation is needed to remedy the grosser wrongs of the financial world, but the fact remains that many of the street diggers, the pack peddlers and the cow punchers of the day will be the influential citizens of tomorrow. Almost all of the great fortunes of the day started from humble beginnings.

"GOD TOOK HER"

MEDICAL men are pleading with parents to use precautions to safeguard the health of their children during the summer months. They know the dangers that surround infant life. They have issued warnings before, but year after year the slaughter of the innocents has gone on. Only now and then have parents heeded and saved a precious life for fathers and mothers usually are unable to understand that the message was to save their child.

Who has not attended the funeral service for a little bit of human clay that once romped and played and prattled? At the funeral of a bright little ten-year-old recently the minister said "God took her" and the grief-stricken parents wondered at the cruelty of a God who robbed them of their child. But God didn't decree that the little one should die. She was brought into the world to live a happy, useful life of the allotted span of time, but the laws that would have permitted such a career were violated and sickness and death followed.

Hot weather, impure water and contaminated foods are some of the natural enemies of health. Other dangers to health might be mentioned but these appear to be the chief perils of the season now on. We must wage an incessant warfare against them if we are to overcome their ill effects. We must heed the warnings of those who have made the conservation of health a study if we are to bring our children to manhood and womanhood with sound bodies.

And what is more we must not forget that the message is to save that cuddling little bundle of sweetness that is dearer to us than life itself and which we call "our child."

PIONEER DATA.

To the Editor of The Gazette:
In The Gazette of July 7, 1914, is an interesting report of the discovery of an "old dodger" in the sheeting of a house at 111 East Rio Grande street. This dodger advertising a lottery to take place in our village October 8, 1872—the memorable panic year—the beginning of the memorable six years of financial gloom and distress, when the poor trembled and money talked was dictated and demanded. The lottery was the only way of getting a fair consideration for personal property when many families despair would give almost their last dollar for a chance of getting a hundred—when many of our church societies did not hesitate to use lottery devices to meet expenses.

The report, however, says: "At that time and for many years afterwards, there were no houses in the city north of Pikes Peak avenue."

This is too great a misstatement to be passed over. A map of the village, now before me, made in 1872, issued January, 1874, showing all the houses then built and in process of construction, reveals the fact that prior to 1874, 20 per cent. of the village was north of Pikes Peak avenue. All but one of the churches and the High school, southeast corner of Bijou and Cascade, were north. The first colony building was on the northeast corner of Kiowa and Tejon. This building was the first county home, when in 1873 the county seat was moved from Colorado City to this village. Irving Howbert was the first who presided in this city as county clerk. In this building was established the first telegraph office. Matt France was the first telegraph operator. This building was the first in the village to be struck by lightning and here was first used the great Babcock fire extinguisher.

On the northeast corner of Boulder and Cascade, after in 1878 built a home later known as the Channing Sweet home, in which Mrs. William Palmer organized and taught the first school in the village.

A map shows on Cascade, east side, and on the fifth 25-foot lot north of Pikes Peak avenue, the first bank building. It also shows the building on the north side of Pikes Peak avenue and the fifth 25-foot lot west of Tejon in which I started my mining and metallurgical school, November 1, 1876. It also shows the Wanless building, where the First National bank was organized and where in the west half of the second story of said building was established, May, 1874, the Preparatory school which developed into Colorado college for boys. BULL FIGHTING.

BY GEORGE FITCH
Author of "At Odds Old Sluagh"

Bull fighting was once called the national sport of Mexico. However, these days it is generally known as the principal cause of what ails Mexico. What ails Mexico is the fact that it doesn't civilize fast enough. The western hemisphere has been standing around for a century waiting for Mexico to civilize the housewife waits for her jelly to set. But nothing has come of it. Just about the time that strong symptoms of civilization are being noticed in the country, the people take an afternoon off and go to a bull fight.

The bull is about the only thing in Mexico that doesn't want to fight, too. He is usually a peaceable creature and has to be provoked with sharp skewers before he loses his temper. The Mexican himself, loves nothing better than to get up a little revolution on a quiet day and reduce the census figures as near to zero as possible, but it usually takes a score of men, half an acre of red cloth and a lot of insulting language to get a bull roused to the point of resistance. For all his reputation, the bull is as peaceable as a democratic administration which has been voting against warships and ammunition for a few decades.

Bull fights are held in vast arenas walled with eager, bloodthirsty people and are extremely fatal—not to the spectators or the fighting men, but to the bull and to such luckless horses as can't get out of his way. A bull fight isn't a success unless half a dozen horses have had their internal arrangements spilled out on the ground by an impassioned bull who is trying to get even with the man who stuck a skewer into his flank. The Mexican senorita is one of the most beautiful things fashioned by nature, but when she claps her dainty hands over a shrieking horse who has just been ripped from stem to stern, she causes the spectator from the north to realize why peace has a hard time getting a foothold south of the Rio Grande. American men admire the senoritas for their dark and vivid beauty, but they do not marry them to any extent. Possibly they have seen too many of them at bull fights.

The bull fight is not, of course, as cruel a thing as a gun fight on Broadway or a labor war in Colorado, but it is bloody, messy and very unfair to the bull and the deer-footed horses who get dismantled during the proceedings. In America, we electrocute our gun fighters and fine the man who beats a horse. But in Mexico, the bull fighters are greatly honored and are more popular than the president. Somewhere in this difference between the two countries lies the reason why Mexico has advanced like a stone hitching post in the last century.

How You May Influence Eternity

BY RUTH CAMERON

"Do make thy garden as fair as thou canst
Thou wilt never know alone;
Perchance he whose plot is next to thine
May see and mend his own."

When Andrew Carnegie is asked what first aroused his interest in the need of free libraries he turns back pages of his life and tells about his boyhood. It seems that in Allegheny City, where he once lived, there was a certain Colonel Anderson, a kind-hearted gentleman, who opened his library of 400 volumes every Saturday afternoon to loan books to those who could not afford to buy their own. Among these was the poor telegraph operator who later became the steel king of the world. The pleasure and profit which Colonel Anderson's kindness gave to Andrew Carnegie was a seed planted in fertile soil. It has already fruited into the gift of over 2,200 libraries in the United States and Scotland, and nobody knows how much more fruit it may yet bear.

So far may the widened circles of one good deed reach. We long may the influence of one man's efforts to help his fellow men endure. Most of us would like to help and influence humanity in some great and wonderful way, but the humble helps that lie within our power scarcely seem worth while. We must not forget that the influence may become a far greater force than we dare dream of.

The inspiration of the widow's mite has helped to build many a beautiful cathedral. Colonel Anderson's humble gift of self and service has helped educate hundreds of thousands, nay, millions of people.

Mrs. Browning once asked Charles Kingsley what was the secret of his beautiful life and work. He answered, "I had a friend." We do not know the name of that friend, but we know that he owes much to him, for by his friendship he helped to make Charles Kingsley.

"All that I am and ever hope to be I owe to my angel mother," said Abraham Lincoln. That means that his mother, influenced by the history of the world, she might have thought it did not matter whether she might have thought it did not matter whether she was in her and taught the little country boy to worship the highest ideals of truth and justice, yet it did matter—and not just to a few people but to nations.

Thou knowest not what argument thy life to thy neighbor's creed has lent—and not only to thy neighbor's creed, but to the millions of his neighbors whom he may influence.

Truly the possible power even of the humblest of us is a great and solemn thing. One is almost appalled by the thought of it, and yet we need not be. For after all, it is very simple. Of no man is required more than he can give. Just remember what Canon Farrar says, "The only real failure is not to be true to the best one knows." Live up to that; give what you have and lo, the widening circles of blessed influence from your life may touch the shores of eternity.

THE SUNDAY PURSE

To the Editor of The Gazette:
The Reverend Doctor Sunday winces angrily at the appellation "grafter," but if I were not frustrated by your limitation on space I would prove that this gospel truppe bears the "t" mark, soul and baggage, and that its organization is as extensive.

Doctor Garvin wrote you that at a noon service in Pittsburgh, 10 men were present whose wealth combined would exceed $200,000,000. That event was prearranged at a million-dollar church, whose pastor is a multimillionaire and a Billy Sunday booster. After the service, Billy accompanied the party to the millionaire club and later, at the tavern, I saw Sunday stand and gaze. Lord, that was a fine luncheon he had down there. Mellon and McPherson and Laughlin are fine fellows; bless them, Lord.

Sunday claims to be sent of God; but in Luke 10 the Ordainer enjoins his gospel messengers: "Carry neither purse, nor scrip." Here are some of the figures that relate strictly to the personal "offering" at the last four stands: At Johnstown, $15,555; at Pittsburgh, $42,560.43; (independent of this, Rodheaver got at Pittsburgh $12,000 for his book sales, and Fred Seibert got $4,000 for his little stuff); at Scranton, $25,000; at Huntington, $11,275—a total "offering" of $94,491.43 to this "successful" evangelist in the six months ending with May.

Now let our Colorado Springs citizens "do" themselves nobly by casting into this rich man's purse, lest he "knock" the town along his way as he threatened he could do.

A HARMLESS DOCTRINE

To the Editor of The Gazette:
The ignorant people are sure the Bible does not teach eternal punishment. All scripture substantiating said doctrine they either ignore or pervert to suit their opinions. They can't harmonize a God of love, wisdom and justice with the teaching of eternal torture; and because they are lacking in ability to harmonize, they reject what others, who have made the Bible their life study, firmly believe.

It is almost to me a man ought to be able to fully comprehend the majesty of God and the enormity of wrong that is incorporated in sinning against God, defying all efforts of divinity to help and save him, before he relegates the doctrine of eternal punishment to the antiquities.

If I live a righteous life before God, it won't harm me if I believe in eternal perdition of the wicked, but it may induce me to become faithful and more careful to escape damnation and to make every effort to pull the lost one out of the fire before it is too late. Jude 23. Neither does the doctrine of eternal perdition harm the unbeliever, for if it is a myth, as they claim, it will produce no ill effect except to incite some fear and unrest at times when they are alone with God.

It behooves every mortal to confess with Paul, "I know nothing without the aid of the scriptures and his ways, past finding out." All scripture is given by inspiration and is profitable for doctrine, for reproof, for correction, that the man of God may be perfect, thoroughly furnished unto all good work. 1 Timothy 3:16-17.

EMIGRATION TO CANADA DECREASES, SAYS WILSON

WASHINGTON, July 10.—Secretary Wilson of the department of labor placed at reports he is receiving which indicate that the number of American citizens emigrating to Canada is decreasing. For several years the tide of emigration across the northern borders of the United States grew to such proportions as to cause anxiety to government officials and others. During 1912, 87,951 American citizens went to Canada, while the number returning from that country to the United States was only 38,317.

Wilson became secretary of labor. Mr. Wilson ordered that departmental bulletins giving facts as to the products, resources and physical characteristics of all the states be sent to American residents of Canada. In response many inquiries for more specific information began to come in.

For the 11 months ending May 31, 1914, it is stated at the department, 53,296 citizens of this country went over into the Dominion while 44,127 Americans returned to the United States. A striking feature of the return migration to Secretary Wilson is the large numbers of those coming back are seeking information from the department as to the location of land on which they may settle.

HIGHWAY BUILDING IN AMERICA

From the Washington Star.
Something more than 200 years ago there was built the first great American highway, "the old York Road," between New York and Philadelphia. The construction of this famous road in 1711 was an example that led the colonists at other points along the Atlantic seaboard to "take similar to do where there were no water routes. For the most part these roads were built by chartered companies, and were called turnpikes or toll roads. Pennsylvania, Connecticut and New Jersey had many of this kind.

The first macadamized road in this country was constructed in 1792 between Philadelphia and Lancaster. In 1811 there were said to be 4,500 miles of chartered turnpikes in New England and New York. During the next 20 years the government expended many millions of dollars in constructing great highways, but the panic of 1857 and the building of railways and canals put an end to that branch of the government work.

SUNLIGHT IN CITIES

That the open air in some places makes for health and in other places for ill health everybody knows. Yet the crude methods employed by chemists, microscopists and bacteriologists in their examinations of air have not shown in what lies the difference. That narrow, dark streets, high buildings, dark courts were unhealthy every summer, was recognized, yet when it came to a demonstration of the quality of their badness proof halted.

In recent years the students of radium and radio-activity have furnished some suggestions of value. Now even more valuable information comes from studies of the qualities of light. Brockman of Regina, Sask., Canada, tells us that the principal harmful effect of smoke and dust is in filtering out the ultra-violet and violet rays from sunlight. The long rays at the other end of the spectrum contribute directly to the bacteriological action of light. They kill by drying and in some measure by heat. The short rays bacteria by direct action.

The rays that are most effective are the 290 m. m. rays. In the desert at Anasazi the 290 rays reach the earth in fair quantity. In Washington, D. C., on a sunny day, the shortest rays which reach the earth are the 390s; on a cloudy day, the 500s; on an exceedingly cloudy, hazy day, the 430s.

"The investigation indicates that especially smoke, even in relatively thin layers, effects a selective absorption in such a way as to impoverish the light passing through the medium, particularly in ultra-violet and violet rays."

When the sun looks like a yellowish red ball and the rays are yellowish, such light as there is, is not capable of destroying being in life. The smoke which gathers over great cities in thick layers is impervious to short waved light and allows only a subdued, glaucous light to reach the ground. The light is sometimes reduced to 3 of 1 per cent. of the normal.

In London it has been possible for a long time to notice a relation between sunless days and outbreaks of influenza, common colds, pneumonia, and even such diseases as diphtheria, scarlet fever and whooping cough. At have women who, this was. At have women who, this was. At have women who, this was.

The present explanation is that on cloudy, foggy and smoky days sunlight has not the purifying action possessed on clear days; that the air of mountain tops and of clear expanses in the country is helpful because none of the short rays are filtered out of the sunlight.

Brockman advocates measures against smoke and dust in the air. He also advocates wide, broad streets, houses with fewer stories, wide court yards and treeless streets. He would have strips of lawn and flower beds, but no trees.

E. J. P. writes: "I wish some information about loose or floating cartilage in the knee."

REPLY.
The knee is a joint. The thick bone and the shin bone enter into it. It must move perfectly from before back, but it must not move, not even wobble, in any other direction. It must take up some of the shock of each step. To meet these requirements the ends of the bones are covered by cartilage and the joint is surrounded by a capsule. Between the ends of the bones are cartilage pads. From the capsule, the cartilage and the pads there grows a fringe which serves as packing for the joint, filling in the cracks and crannies. If a man keeps his joints supple by

SAN FRANCISCO, July 10.—Warrants for the arrest of Charles K. Field, editor of the Sunset Magazine, and former president of the Bohemian club; Robert J. Fowler, an aviator, and Ray S. Dehema, photographer, and Riley A. Scott, a writer, were issued today at the request of John W. Preston, United States attorney here.

The charge against all four is the disclosure of military secrets, and the $100,000 fine for such disclosure if made abroad and one year or a $10,000 fine if made in the United States.

In April Sunset published an article entitled "Can the Panama Canal Be Destroyed from the Air?" Reproductions of photographs taken from an airplane and showing some of the fortifications of the canal zone and of the San Francisco Presidio accompanied the text.

As soon as a copy of the number was called to the attention of the war department it requested Preston to investigate.

MRS. WALKER SAYS SHE DID NOT RECEIVE FUNDS

IN a statement yesterday, Mrs. Daisy Walker of 25 West Moreno avenue takes issue with the Rev. S. L. Brewster of the City Sunday campaign committee, concerning a collection taken at the tabernacle several nights ago in which it was expected that she would share. Reports have been circulated, Mrs. Walker says, that she received money from this source, but the reports, she declared yesterday, are not true.

"It was announced before the collection was taken," she said, "that some of the money would be for me and my three children. I did not receive a penny, and I want my friends to know that I did not. All I ask is that the facts be given to the public. The impression has been given that I did receive some of the collection, when, as a matter of fact, I have received nothing."

The Rev. Mr. Brewster called attention to Mrs. Walker's case several nights ago, just before a collection was to be taken at the tabernacle. He first pointed out that the finance committee needed $500, then added that $50 was needed for Mrs. Walker, and asked the audience to make the collection at least $550. The amount collected was less than the $550 needed by the committee, and, as a result, none of the money was set aside for Mrs. Walker. She said yesterday that some of her friends had dropped money in the collection plates with the understanding that it was to be given to her.

FIRE ENGINE IN USE 100 YEARS

From the Indianapolis Star.
One of the most interesting objects exhibited in connection with the centennial celebration at New Harmony, Ind., is the first engine used by the hapless colony, founded at New Harmony a century ago.

The engine was made in Philadelphia in 1812 and was taken to New Harmony in 1814. It has been used ever since and aided in extinguishing a fire three weeks ago. Its admirers assert that it is still more successful than the modern apparatus in the town's fire department.

WHEAT PRICES SOAR DESPITE HEAVY YIELD

WASHINGTON, July 10.—Despite a wheat crop estimate this year of 330,000,000 bushels, the largest on record, no hope is held out by the department of agriculture for greatly reduced prices. Such a large crop would augur very low prices, according to the statement, were it not that the world crops of wheat and competing grains do not promise more than the average of recent years. Besides, more than the usual diversion of wheat from its use as food to the use of feed for livestock may be expected because of the present relatively short supply of corn in sections where there is a promise of abundant wheat.

With corn selling in Kansas for about seven cents more a bushel than wheat it is not surprising, officials say, that much wheat should be consumed as feed by animals. Kansas' corn crop last year was only 23,000,000 bushels, compared with the usual production of 150,000,000 bushels. This year's estimates are for a crop of 150,000,000 bushels of wheat.

It is estimated that about 45,000,000 bushels of wheat of last year's crop was consumed as animal food. Of the average annual production of 668,000,000 bushels of wheat during the last five years about 551,000,000 were retained in this country and 105,000,000 bushels exported.

If the domestic wheat requirements were reckoned at about 5.3 bushels per capita, exclusive of seed and 75,000,000 to 80,000,000 bushels for seed and were applied to a population of 88,836,000, officials say it would indicate a normal requirement of 522,770,000 bushels, plus seed requirement of 77,000,000, or a total of about 600,000,000.

The statement adds that this would indicate an available export supply from the crop of nearly 330,000,000 bushels but there must be deducted from this amount the quantity used for live stock feed estimated at approximately 75,000,000 and possibly more. Even this would leave about 255,000,000 for export.

"Present indications," says the department, "are that during the coming season the domestic consumption will be unusually large on account of takings for live stock purposes and that the exportable surplus will find good foreign demand."
